My Version of Shakespeare's Othello killing Desdemona

Some of the questions I asked myself before making this project were: How am I going to do this? Where am I going to get the supplies for it? It was very hard to use the limited resources I had to make this as best as I can. One thing that I learned about myself is that I am not that creative. In the response to the advice you gave me i decided to put a white dress on her to represent the white wedding dress she died in. I also added red and black to the background to represent the anger and emotion to the scene.
