Here is the final Animation from scratch:

Enjoy!
